- → Solutions

Our Story

Indigenous-led experts delivering data-driven research to empower communities and transform healthcare.

Our Promises

Listen Before We Lead

We listen to communities first, letting their guidance shape the evidence we provide to support Indigenous wellbeing.

Advance Health Equity

Indigenous Peoples demand equitable health outcomes. Waapihk supports outcomes-based programs to reduce chronic disease.

Data First

Compelling research blends qualitative and quantitative data, honoring and protecting both the stories and the people they belong to.

Our Work

Products and Services

Community Health Profiles

Comprehensive community health assessments with goals, needs, and actionable recommendations.

Fiscal policy and advocacy reports

Tailored reports to strengthen advocacy, budget negotiations, and long-term planning.

Microcosting Analysis

Community-guided program costing in health and education to advocate for needed resources.

Tailored Services

Custom consulting rooted in Waapihk's expertise in Indigenous health and education.

Specific Background on Jordan's Principle

Jordan's Principle spending tells us little about actual needs.

Costing needs is challenging when spending is spread across many overlapping programs.

Money moves between federal programs and governments.

Jordan's Principle is meant to serve as a jurisdiction dispute resolution mechanism.

How requests are approved matters.

In recent years, growing spending on Jordan's Principle requests have not been matched with a proportional increase in administrative spending.

Jordan's Principle Spending % Change

"No one ever anticipated that every request would be approved. The power was with (Canada) – it was their decision to approve these cases."

Cindy Blackstock, First Nations Child & Family CaringSociety

Accessing Data for Costing Jordan's Principle Needs

Barriers to accessing data

- 1. Privacy Policies
- 2. Resources Hidden in Plain Sight
- 3. No "X" to Mark the Spot

Privacy policies

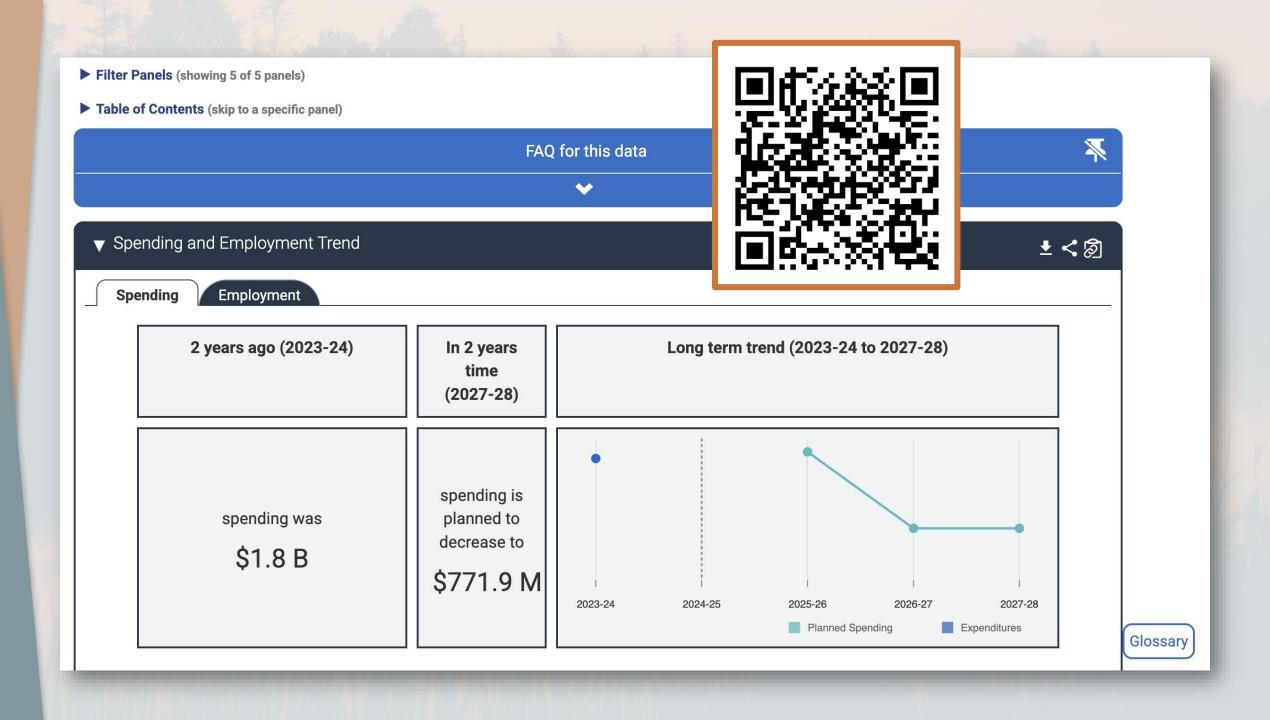

- Crown vs. Private:Treaty Obligations
- → Who does the policy protect?
- → Who can access data?

Resources hidden in plain sight

- Canada is relatively transparent (with the data they have), but it can be challenging to navigate the data.
- Helpful, publicly available government resources are available.

Public Accounts of Canada

Departmental Plans, Departmental Results, Evaluations

No "X" to mark the spot

- Your data collection priorities might be different from the government.
- Raw data isn't analyzed.

Lack of normative standards.

Solution to Accessing Data

- 1. ATIP and FIPPA requests
- 2. Data triangulation
- 3. Collect data you can leverage

ATIP and FIPPA requests

- Access to Information and Privacy (ATIP)
- → Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act (FIPPA)

Triangulation of data

- Two or more Data Sources
- Comparing data sources provides answers

Try it yourself — Start small!

- Collect some historical data from ATIP or FIPPA requests
- Add local data which might be helpful
- Develop a data organization strategy
- Foster responsible custody of the data with your own careful storage
- Build organizational capacity —
 Develop an analysis practice
